

Summer /Fall 2016

Emanuel YOUTH Mission: We have been working for 11 years to raise the standard of living for the families of Taura, El Salvador and other nearby rural communities, so these children and youth can finally break the chain of poverty that has been their way of life for generations. God and all of you, our mission partners, have made it possible for them to have their first church building, motorized vehicle for transportation, clean water, a medical clinic, irrigation to extend the growing season for these people who depend upon agriculture for their survival, fogging for mosquito control, shoes, clothing, food, and education. Education is the best way to overcome poverty.

These children are the first in their families to attend school. The school year begins in January; they do their school shopping in December, so we are asking for sponsorships now. Please help these children know they can begin school in January. Sponsorship for one year per student is $300. Some students are graduating from high school and have the academic potential to go to college. We need your help to sponsor these children for education and some for college.

One year of college in El Salvador is $5,000. Yanci was our first high school graduate. She is passionate about being a doctor to help her people. Calvary Baptist Church in Lovington, Virginia sponsors her for college, and we have opened a fund toward her medical school. She is already excelling. Here are photos of her at school and helping with the Taura medical clinic. Taura has other gifted high school graduates who would benefit from college, but cannot afford that dream. We need your help to build a college fund for Yanci to complete medical school and to help other motivated students achieve their dream and help their community and future families.

100% of donations go to our education fund and other mission projects.

Our mission representative, Marvin Benavides, has been working on mission projects, doing annual repairs, mosquito control, following up with families who received animals from the mission food sustainability projects, and working with the children and youth. Thanks to God and all our mission partners for helping to make this progress possible!

New doors on the water system building

Community mosquito control fogging, $150 each time

Building trusses and putting on roof over waiting area of Taura Medical Clinic, cost of clinic operation $600/month

Families enjoying the animals and food products from the food sustainability projects, cost $500 to sponsor family.

This was lifesaving last Fall during the drought that caused the loss of all crops during the growing season.

100% of donations go to mission projects. Please help these children and families. Thank you for your kind donations.
